BRIDGERLAND
COMPENTENCY TESTING

The board in their previous meeting in March reviewed the competency test results from the different apprenticeship schools. Bridgerland is teaching from a different curriculum and the board wanted to know if Bridgerland is giving their students the same competency plumbing test as the other state schools. Katie Tris contacted Paul James the apprenticeship coordinator for the school. James through an e-mail indicated Bridgerland is using the same competency test as the other schools. They use the same curriculum as the other schools for the first two years. In the third and forth year they use the NCCER along with bits and pieces of the state wide curriculum. Bridgerland has a limited number of students and this allows them to have the first, second, third and forth year students all in the same class. The board did not know what NCCER stood for and asked Tris to contact James and find out.

COLORADO RECIPROCAL DISCUSSION

Tris tried to make contact with Steve Conrad of Colorado about licensing requirements for journeymen plumbers. He, however, had been out of the office and not available. Tris said she would follow up with Conrad and report back to the board at their next board meeting.

APPLICATION REVIEW

The board reviewed out of state applications.

All business concluded, meeting adjourned.

After the board meeting was adjourned, the board members (excluding David Halverson), Dennis Meservy and Katie Tris met with Dwight Nickle of Thomson Prometric and reviewed written test questions for the plumbing examination.
